Updated on February 14th every year. Yahoo Pics - YPNX Yahoo Pics Yahoo Pics is a popular new free photo-sharing and social networking web site. Yahoo Pics is one of the biggest photo-sharing sites online, providing user access to over a million photos. Users can upload and download photos without any restrictions. Users can create their own profile with their favorite photos and upload photos to share with others. Yahoo Pics also has a "Search for Friends" feature that allows users to upload photos to a personal profile that can then be viewed by friends of the user. Originally scheduled for June 2005, the service was delayed and officially opened to public on December 1, 2005. History The original idea for Yahoo Pics came to Jason Fan, a former member of the Yahoo! Mail team. Fan, along with fellow Yahoo Mail employee (and Yahoo Photos product manager) Jeremy Levine, had decided to develop a new service that would combine features from Flickr and Facebook. Fan was assigned to build Yahoo Photos and Levine to build Yahoo Mail, while still working at Yahoo Mail. Levine described the service as, "An activity-based social network (like Facebook) but focused on people's photos." Yahoo Pics is a Java-based service. Yahoo Pics services are currently hosted by Yahoo! Japan with the exception of the Japanese Search Friend feature, which is only accessible with the Japan Yahoo! Search Ape. Users can choose to receive daily photo collages, all photos uploaded to the site, or a combination of both. In addition to the collages, users can upload photos directly to their accounts. After allowing Yahoo! Photos to access their email address, the user's personal photo collages and photos they upload are available to view in their My Yahoo account. Security concerns In April 2007, Yahoo Pics was hacked. Yahoo users were instructed not to use Yahoo Pics for several days after, while Yahoo worked to fix the problem. Yahoo Pics users were also allowed to access other site's private photos without the owners permission. In June 2007 Yahoo Pics and Flickr were hacked again. It was reported by users and software engineers that on June 20th, 2007, Yahoo Pics had become unstable, and was being overwhelmed with traffic. Yahoo's
