This new technology gives you unparalleled control to manipulate the ball, and see the ball in the context of your opponent's body position. And thanks to the unique player collisions enabled by this technology, you'll have a new depth of control over the game's physics engine. And the worst player on the pitch will now have real consequences. New player ratings are based on real-world statistics, and the AI behaviours now more powerfully reflect on-pitch intelligence. When you're faced with fouls, controlled play, or the usual bad players, you can now jump into the trenches with confidence to get the ball back. Unstoppable tackling powered by HyperMotion will make players truly feel the bite of your tackle, and it creates new options for fouls and holds, all based on what you'd expect from a real player. GOALKEEPING There are two new reflex save systems in FIFA 22. Hard saves can be performed immediately after a shot is taken and are meant to buy you time to respond to pressure. When the save system chooses to save, your player will stand still for a couple of moments while the save is played out. Players who haven't been caught in the act of shooting will have an easier time deciding if they should attempt a save. The final saving decision will be made by the keeper in reaction to the event and the animation of the save will reflect that decision. As long as your player is in the right place at the right time, you can expect a more reactive and dynamic save system. The hardest save to make is, of course, at your own post. The goalkeepers will take a lot of pressure and attention when they have the ball, and if that happens, you might need to call your goalkeeper's bluff to get the ball back. DEFENDING Full-backs, right-backs, centre-backs, and central defenders have all been given enhanced defending. When defending with a nearby player, there will be a visual indicator on the pitch that will show how close your defender and the nearby player are. By challenging your near-side (or far-side) defender to win a tackle, you can open up space for your team to build attacks. When your defender makes an interception, he'll have the option to jump into a tackle or make a pass, or he can try to beat his marker for space
