The official Pajama Sam amiibo will transform your favorite Disney Interactive superfan's console into a virtual living room. Play along with Pajama Sam in adventure games, make funny jokes, and more. Prepare for action-packed adventures with Pajama Sam in Disney's Spy Fox, Putt-Putt, and Freddi Fish. Kids who own the Pajama Sam amiibo can tap the touch panel on the console to unlock brand new challenges, challenges, and levels that only they can complete. Characters: Put-Putt Put-Putt is a very mechanical and honest, little purple guy who has feelings. He loves playing with his tools in the middle of the road and loves a squeeze. He was lost after his broken wheel was thrown off of the moving car. Fortunately he stumbled upon a mechanic who fixed him up. Put-Putt lives next door to Freddi Fish and Spy Fox. He loves pudding and hugs and can be dressed up as a car. He can carry objects and seems to always be in his car. Freddi Fish Freddi is a blue fish who likes yelling about himself and talking about his nose. He lived in the ocean for a long time until his parents decided to visit a store and let him swim down to the ocean in a wooden box. Freddi loves clothing, and thinks he is a great swimmer. He can hold things like a wallet, a shoe, and a jellyfish. He thinks he is very smart, and can make himself look like other things. Spy Fox Spy Fox is a fox who is always looking for the owner of a special artifact called a "Wheels". He has a crush on Pajama Sam and he thinks he is the best when it comes to the art of spying. His best friend is Put-Putt and he meets him once a month at an island called "the island". He can fly and is also good with computers. Pajama Sam Pajama Sam loves to sleep and wear the famous pajamas. He can play games, make jokes, talk to the neighbors, and do a lot of other silly things. Pajama Sam cannot sleep without his pajamas and his favorite thing to wear are his "feeties". He is his own superhero, and is always ready for action. He has many "super suits" that he can wear and use to fight the bad guys. The Pajama Sam Amiibo is

Luther's Maze Madness is a fun puzzle game for one or more players, released for the Intellivision in 1989. Gameplay is similar to Whomp 'Em, except that players navigate an obstacle course of vertical tubes that must be passed to proceed to the next level. Some tubes may contain monsters which when killed, destroy the player's current tube. Only one player can survive to the next level. The game features two player modes, either up to four players can compete against one another, or one can play against a computer controlled opponent. Luther's Maze Madness was part of a series of vertical maze games for the Intellivision. These games feature procedurally generated mazes, which are considered among the best maze games of all time. Game History Luther's Maze Madness was the first in a series of vertical maze games for the Intellivision. The first of the series was originally released in 1987 for the Atari 2600 as Island of Mad Mice. The game was a sequel to Island of Mad Mice, which was also a maze game for the Atari 2600. The Intellivision and Nintendo Entertainment System versions of Island of Mad Mice were localized and released in Japan under the title Jungle of

Maze Madness. All of the vertical maze games for the Intellivision feature procedurally generated mazes, which are considered among the best maze games of all time. For example, Island of Mad Mice features over 1000 levels with no two games the same, and the maze of Jungle of Maze Madness is literally infinite. Luther's Maze Madness was never released for the original Intellivision, and was a spin-off from a series of "Pirate" Intellivision games by Humongous Entertainment, which were designed for the Nintendo Entertainment System. The Intellivision game is the same in gameplay as the NES games. Game Review The Intellivision/NES version of Luther's Maze Madness is a spin-off of the Intellivision game Pirate of Maze Madness. For those who don't know, the NES version is essentially the same game as the Intellivision version, except instead of using a joystick, players navigate through the maze using the D-pad. This is known as a "controlpad" in the NES world. The NES version of the game was the first in the series to use full motion video. The Intelliv

Ok, here's the problem. I have a textual RSS feed that I've created using RSS 2.0, it's for a newspaper, but it's for the topic of news and articles. As it stands now, when I try to add it to a catalog in my theme, it strips me of my text, breaking up my title tags from the first paragraph of the articles and some of the hyperlinks from the articles. Here's a short excerpt of the feed: Chicago Tribune Free-Feed Announcements - news & interesting links - > I'm familiar with.rss format, and I'm pretty sure that some of the stuff I'm doing here is wrong; I'm just not quite sure what to change. Any assistance would be great, thanks!!
A: Ok, I found an answer for my question. I got a little further before my feed didn't work, so any help would have been great. I'll add this answer for the record, in case anybody encounters the same problem! I found some code on this site that I downloaded and using successfully, Before I even wrote my own functions, I went through this tutorial, And honestly, that code does almost exactly what I wanted it to do! All I need to do now, is create a shortcode or something to grab each item and add it to the loop. Thanks for looking at my question anyway!
