Being the curious person that I am, I downloaded it and have since been using it whenever I'm not doing something else. I can't say enough good things about it. Memory Defragmenter does absolutely everything its supposed to do, and that's something many memory utility apps don't offer. There are a few minor drawbacks however, that make Memory Defragmenter stand out from the crowd. Are you familiar with this behavior? It seems as though Memory Defragmenter is constantly trying to wake itself up. Every time you access the taskbar, the program comes alive and tries to start up. Of course, this is annoying, but it's the same with all the other memory utilities I've tested, so I guess it's just a fact of life. The reason why I don't mind the behavior is because the program is otherwise so good at what it does. Memory Defragmenter is one of the fastest memory optimization utilities I've used to date. Unfortunately, while it's simple enough to click the button to make the settings appear, it still doesn't give
