Normal podocyte morphology in uninvolved glomeruli of lupus nephritis. To quantify the percentage of normal looking glomeruli in the biopsy material of lupus nephritis (LN), and to compare the results obtained with a new morphometric method, "normal podocyte quantification" (NPQ), to those from a morphometric analysis with morphology-based and a measurement-based approach, "glomerular morphology analysis" (GMA). We studied 7 LN patients, who had no signs of other renal diseases in addition to LN. All patients had biopsy proven class III LN without ANCA positivity and without overlapping lesions. The percentage of normal looking gl
