The property I am trying to access is initialized with data from a webservice. When I attempt to access a public class property, I get the following error: Property 'ProjectConfig.url' cannot be found on the class 'ProjectConfig' and no default value was supplied. However, if I use the field identifier (in the debugger), I get a null value. I have code that checks if this custom class has a property. But it's always null. I cannot change the class because it will be used in other places. For example, the code works just fine if I move the class to the application level. I have read a lot of threads with similar issues, but none have the answer that works. Any help would be appreciated.
