Escherichia coli folE mutants grow at high glucose concentrations only if a gs-dependent protein synthesizing system is supplied with ribosomes. We show that Saccharomyces cerevisiae cells also exhibit similar growth behavior when supplied with an adequate folate supply. The folate synthesis of these cells was studied in detail. The content of total folates ranged from 2 to 4 micrograms/10(8) cells when cells were grown to a cell density of 0.6-1.0 OD600 in glucose- c6a93da74d
