As Deadline has reported, the U.S. Marshals Service has commenced the search for the two alleged men who had been stalking the teenage actress and her family for months, and they are searching for them in conjunction with the police in London and Italy. (The search has since been extended to neighboring countries.)

Advertisement According to a U.S. official, the Marshals Service has obtained a warrant for the arrest of the two men suspected of violating the restraining order, and any information they obtain will be shared with law enforcement in the UK, where Jolie filed the restraining order to keep the men away from the children. We have heard that Jolie's family believes the men who had been stalking the actress and her family have been the same two men for years and have repeatedly violated restraining orders, and therefore think that the police in Italy will take the lead in this investigation. Jolie and Pitt reportedly flew to Italy on Friday to finalize the
